

“September 1, 2008 - 10:00 am Entergy Transmission will suspend further sale of transmission service as of 10:00, Monday September 1, 2008 in order to maintain reliability in light of the impact of the major Hurricane Gustav on the Southern Louisiana area. Drastic changes to the topology of the transmission system are anticipated and the capability of the system to provide incremental transmission service will not be forecastable during the immediate future. Entergy will resume sales of transmission service as soon as practicable after the results of the damage brought by Hurricane Gustav are evaluated and the transfer capability system is able to produce reliable incremental transfer calculations again.”
